WILD ATLANTIC WAY

 Fáilte Ireland
National Tourism Development Authority

Have you seen these signs and wondered what they're all about?

Find out more by attending your local Wild Atlantic Way Community Briefings

The Wild Atlantic Way is a long distance touring route from Donegal to West Cork with a total length of 2,500km showcasing the Atlantic coastline.

It is a new major tourism initiative for the western seaboard and we're inviting everyone along the route to get involved!

The objective of the Wild Atlantic Way is to link the destinations and attractions along the route together, with the ultimate aim of creating a shopping aisle of experiences and attracting more international visitors to the West Coast.

Over the coming weeks we will hold a series of Wild Atlantic Way Community Briefings so that you can learn more about the Wild Atlantic Way, share ideas and work together so that your local area can get the most out of this new initiative.

The briefings will be held at a variety of locations along the route and we invite you to come along to find out more about the project and how you can be part of it.
